

THEY'RE THE CHAMPS

The First Annual Clam Eat-Off was held Monday in South San Francisco between the Nevada and California clam eating champions. Randy Desha (second from left) grabbed the All-California crown by downing 166 steamed clams to Nevada champion Al Nicolini's 113

mollusks. Rooting on their "eaters" were (far left) Dick Sims and (center) David Hansen. Sims is Assistant police chief and Hansen is the police chief of Daly City. Desha is a Daly City policeman, while Nicolini is security officer for the Las Vegas Nugget Casino.

Local Policeman Outmussels Nevadan Clam-Eating Honors

By FRANK LaPIERRE
A 220-pound Daly City policeman out-musselled Nevada's current clam eating champion during a grudge match in South San Francisco Monday.

Randy Desha, a Hawaii-born 35-year-old, took on Al Nicolini, a 250-pound security officer employed by the Las Vegas Golden Nugget Casino.

After 43 minutes and 20 seconds of the match, held at the 57 Club in South San Francisco, Nicolini conceded he didn't have the stomach to continue.

The official score: Desha 162 clams to Nicolini's 113.

No one kept count of how many bottles of beer were used to wash the morsels down.

Desha arrived late for the match which was scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m.

His trainer, John Kolbman, apologized and explained, "My man had to stop for lunch first."

Excitement rippled through the crowd of some 150 persons as the contestants in the first-ever

Clam Eating Grudge Match between California and Nevada met in the center of the bar and bared their clam forks.

At the signal from "judge" Rick Cimino (KSFQ personality show interviewer when he isn't presiding over clam battles), both men dug in.

From the start, Desha out-forked his opponent, shoveling the tasty mollusks into his mouth at a record pace.

Except for a few short breathers, Desha kept up the blistering pace for the entire contest.

The emergence of the new champion from behind a towering pile of empty clam shells brought wild cheers from the crowd and a kiss from Miss Steamed Clam — Penny Smith of South San Francisco.

Desha's comment on winning the trophy and the chance to defend the title in May, was a simple, "I've got to leave early because of a dinner date."

Kolbman said he had trained his eater by feeding him to touch clams before the match.

"Desha is from Hawaii and he's never eaten a clam before today. Out there in the islands they train on poi. You eat enough poi, you can eat anything," Kolbman said.

The loss of the California crown didn't seem to bother Nicolini.

"I'm still Nevada champ," Nicolini said between burps. "Right now I'm looking forward to a rematch."

Nicolini's trainer, Daly City Chief of Police David Hansen, said his man was not in perfect shape for the match because of a shortage of clams in Nevada.

"Nicolini must come all the way up here to train. It's hard to find clams in Nevada. They've got a lot of sandy beach in Las Vegas, but there just aren't many clams to be found on it," Hansen commented.

The match was the brainchild of Kolbman, a member of the Daly City Exchange Club.

What he hopes to do is make the event an annual affair to help Exchange Club charities.

Kolbman expects the Exchange Club to sponsor a national contest open to the general public in May.

"We think we can really build this up into something — perhaps like the Petaluma wrestling championships," Kolbman said.

Actually, Kolbman admits the whole thing started as an innocent boast when he claimed he had a policeman (Sgt. Steve Steen) who could out-eat Nicolini when it came to clams.

At the time, the record set by Nicolini was 144 clams.

But on the day of the great South City eat-off, Steen called in sick with stomach trouble and a replacement had to be found.

Desha volunteered to defend the state against Nicolini.

Monday's event was sponsored by Leo Grenier, of Acme Beer Co. in San Francisco, himself a clam eater

New Tool Used to Free Girl

Daly City firemen used a new type rescue tool to free a trapped Daly City girl from the twisted wreckage of the car she was riding in Monday morning on Skyline Drive.

Two persons were injured but seven others escaped without injury in a grinding two car crash at the intersection of Westmoor and Skyline boulevards about 10:30 a.m.

Police said, Pamela McMillan of Daly City, the 16-year-old driver of a car containing eight teenagers, ran a red light and was struck broadside by a car travelling southbound on Skyline Boulevard.

The driver of the second car, Edward Kubrich, 59, of 448 Country Club Dr., San Francisco was not injured.

Bonnie McMillan, 14-year-old sister of the driver, and Michael Callahan, 16, of 172 Avalon Drive, Daly City suffered leg injuries and possible contusions in the accident.

Both were taken to Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco.

Callahan was treated and released, and Miss McMillan was held for observation, it was learned.

The injured girl was pried loose from the rear section of the car by the fire department's "Hurst Tool."

Ironically, a procession of news reporters, police and attorneys rolled up to the scene as firemen freed the girl victim.

They were returning to San Francisco with Patricia Hearst after visiting a Northridge Avenue home she reportedly was held captive in after her alleged kidnap.

More Appeals On Assessments

The increase in the number of appeals to property assessments in San Mateo County during the current fiscal year has resulted in the authorization by the Board of Supervisors to hire a hearing officer to supplement the work of the Assessment Appeals Board.

Assistant County Manager Earl Goodwin informed the board this week that the number of assessment appeals filed during 1975-76 totaled 1,189, an increase of 65 per cent from the previous year.

The increase, he said, has generated a workload which the Assessment Appeals Board cannot complete before the end of the fiscal year.

More frequent meetings of the Assessment Appeals Board are not feasible because board members

Senate Bid Schumacher

Daly City Councilman William Schumacher was expected to announce his candidacy for the State Senate seat recently vacated by San Francisco Mayor George Moscone.

Schumacher, a councilman for the past two years and a former trustee of the Jefferson Elementary School District, scheduled a conference at the Press Club in downtown San Francisco for Tuesday morning.

In a release it was indicated Schumacher will toss his hat into the senate campaign ring.

Former San Mateo County Supervisor Robert St. Clair, San Francisco Supervisors Robert Mendelsohn and John Foran, and Assemblyman John Foran have already announced for the seat.

In 1974 Schumacher received 74 per cent of the Daly City vote, winning overwhelmingly a council seat.

He is also credited, according to Robert Caughlan of the Roanoke Co., with directing the campaign "to retire supervisor St. Clair."

Schumacher was raised in the Sunset District of San Francisco; worked his way through law school as a beat policeman in Daly City; and is now a practicing attorney in Daly City.

Papan Political Shuffle

There are indications from Sacramento that Assemblyman Louis J. Papan (D-Daly City) soon will be appointed to a post on the powerful Assembly Committee on Rules.

Papan, already a member of the influential Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee and former speaker pro-tempore of the Assembly, would not comment on the possibility of appointment.

There has been much shifting around of committee seats within the so-called "pro-McCarthy" faction in the state capital recently, and the real reasons for the changes are not clear.

Why, political observers ask, did Papan step down from the second-in-command post? And why was John Knox appointed by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy to the position?

Papan has held the post for the past year, and, his supporters say, was doing a better-than-average job of carrying out the duties of that office.

Some point out that the speaker pro-tempore job is a thankless and impotent post, while a seat on the Rules Committee gives an assemblyman a powerful hand in Sacramento politics.

Papan's close political alliance with McCarthy could be another reason for his possible appointment to the Rules Committee.

This latest shuffle is seen by others as being just another piece in the jigsaw puzzle centering on why Papan did not run for the vacant state Senate seat formerly held by San Francisco Mayor George Moscone.

Papan, for months, appeared to be the obvious choice to seek election to Moscone's seat, but at the last minute removed himself from consideration, citing his commitment to several pending projects here in San Mateo County as the reason for withdrawing.

Shortly after, Assemblyman John Foran, chairman of the Assembly's powerful House Ways and Means Committee (of which Papan is a member), announced he would seek the Senate post.

San Mateo County constituents in the Sixth State Senate District which covers parts of San Francisco and San Mateo County, have voiced here that Foran has limited knowledge of problems confronting the district.

Some have labeled him a "carpetbagger" for moving into the district merely to run for the senate seat.

Papan, on the other hand, is more aware of the issues in both San Francisco and San Mateo counties, observers feel.

Until Foran announced he was going after the Senate seat in the special May election, it had been assumed by many political pundits that former San Mateo County Supervisor Robert St. Clair would tackle the opposition — which to date includes two San Francisco supervisors, John Molinari and Robert Mendelsohn.

When Foran stepped down from the Assembly post, with the announced support of Moscone, McCarthy and other legislators for his candidacy, another vacancy was created.

Art Agnos immediately announced he would run for Foran's post.

Agnos has several things going for him. He not only is a close personal friend of McCarthy, Moscone and Papan (he was born in Springfield, Mass., Papan's hometown) but has worked hard for all three officials over the years.

Agnos is the only survivor of a vicious Zebra attack. He was gunned down after leaving a neighborhood meeting to aid minority causes about three years ago in San Francisco.

And he also is McCarthy's legislative aide in Sacramento.

Small Fire Takes Off

A field fire broke out on San Bruno Mountain Sunday despite all the rain. "It will still burn," a Division of Forestry spokesman said.

Firemen responded at 4:45 p.m. Sunday to the Colma city line on Hillside Boulevard to find a 30-by-30-foot blaze burning in oily eucalyptus leaves, a half mile up the hill.

A man with a dune buggy gave firemen a lift up the steep slope, and the blaze was quickly contained.

Firemen said the blaze apparently was originally a small fire set by cyclists who wanted to get warm, and spread out of control.

Man Behind Badges Building Collection

By JANET PARKER

There probably isn't a law enforcement agency in California that hasn't had some contact with Dr. Ray Ferguson.

The South San Francisco High School political science teacher has been persistently, but patiently, seeking help from the hundreds of influential departments throughout the state.

The reason is simple. He wants their badges.

It may sound strange for a high school teacher with few connections in the law enforcement field to think he actually could obtain the impressive shields.

But he has. In fact, his collection of badges is well on its way to completion.

Ferguson, a Burlingame resident, has collected hundreds of mementos from police departments, toll bridge authorities, the state Department of Fish and Game, the Secret Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and county sheriff's departments during the last three years.

He also recently sent letters to fire departments in nearly every California city asking for memorabilia. And they're starting to turn up in his mailbox, too.

The whole idea, Ferguson said, is to build up an historically significant exhibit for Cal-Expo, the state fair, to be held in Sacramento in August.

"I've been traveling all around the United States and no one has ever done this kind of thing before," the tall, slender instructor said.

In his travels through the Eastern states in particular, he saw many antique fire engines and a few historical items saved here and there by sentimental law enforcement personnel, but never an extensive collection.

Three years ago, however, he started writing letters to as many agencies in the state as he could find the time for, informing department chiefs that he wished to honor their departments by including them in a collection.

He has requested mementos representing the first and present chiefs in each agency. As a result, he has received badges, shoulder patches, photographs and stacks of historical literature about the departments.

And with his recent inquiries to fire departments he also has been accumulating an assortment of fire hats.

It hasn't been easy to obtain help from some agencies.

For example, both the Secret Service and the FBI in San Francisco were reluctant to send the real thing. Ferguson has received only photographs of the badges from those departments.

The Peninsula Humane Society director indicated he could loan out the badges only for the duration of the display and not until then.

He has received no response from the State Department of Corrections in his request for badges worn by early and present prison guards. A recent changeover in administration might be the reason his letters have been unanswered, Ferguson said.

"I want to be as nice as I can so maybe in the future they will say 'okay,'" Ferguson said.

Some agencies, he said, have had bad experiences with such gifts in the past and are reluctant to continue them. A Fish and Game captain told Ferguson he had sent a collection of mementos to a Sacramento office some time ago and the collection was lost en route.

Ferguson received badges and other items from most of the local police departments, including those in San Jose and San Mateo. The South San Francisco Police Department was one of the first to respond.

A few cities in the county such as Hillsborough were difficult to persuade. But South San Francisco City Manager Ed Alario went to bat for Ferguson and persuaded the Hillsborough chief to provide the requested mementos.

Another time, after communicating with the Oakland area toll bridge authorities, he spent a day with a captain learning about the history of toll bridges in the Bay Area.

Ferguson plans to put the collection together for display by June. Students in his political science classes are helping him get it into finished form.

He has written to Cal-Expo authorities and was informed that a Cal-Expo committee must approve his application for a booth at the fair.

The problem, Ferguson said, is that most of the departments which loaned him materials are asking that there be strict security for any exhibit. Ferguson said he does not know whether Cal-Expo will be able to provide adequate security.

In addition to Alario, Ferguson has received help from county Supervisor Ed Boccia Jr. and South San Francisco Police Chief Jim Datzman.

So far, he has received mementos from about half of the sheriff's departments in the state's 58 counties. And he has written to more than 150 cities for police items, with about half responding. The fire department souvenirs are just beginning to trickle in.

Whether or not his collection makes it to Cal-Expo, Ferguson is hopeful that someone will be able to maintain the collection with adequate security "for public viewing."

"I wouldn't want this to end up locked in a vault somewhere," Ferguson said.

Dog Aids SSF Arrest

Two men were arrested inside Lyle's Restaurant at 744 El Camino Real Friday morning by South San Francisco police aided by "Roy" the department's top dog.

While on patrol rookie policeman Robert Piveronas spotted pry marks on a rear door at the restaurant and called for backup police teams to assist in a search of the premises.

Inside police allegedly apprehended David A. White, 19, a painter of 570 Railroad Ave., South San Francisco, and Philip Bluthardt, 19, a student who gave police a Eureka address.

Both men were charged with burglary.

A 17-year-old boy was apprehended a short distance from the restaurant waiting inside a getaway car, police said.

The youth was sent to Hillside Juvenile Center for complicity in the burglary, police said.

New Building Taxes At Serramonte

By KITTI MILANI
Correspondent

Serramonte High School has a new building for its Business Department.

Each of the five rooms in the building is completely carpeted and installed with a sink, and each student has a separate personal drawer for storing papers and assignments.

Jean Smith, a business teacher at Serramonte, is now teaching two trial model business classes in this building.

Each class consists of only juniors and seniors, and operates as a simulated and controlled office for a company that manufactures cosmetics for young adults.

All students enrolling in the classes participated in pre-employment procedures, including writing letters of application and data sheets and being interviewed.

All students were assigned to one of the nine possible positions in the company, with two or three students co-working in one position.

Among the major positions were the office managers, receptionists, accountants, shipping managers and secretaries.

These students will be using professional calculators, electric typewriters, transcribers, mimeograph machines and duplicating machines this spring semester.

Jean Smith already is planning future model classrooms to be established for the fall semester.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS currently is selling "Serramonte — Class of '79" navy-blue T-shirts at $4.50 each.

The shirts will be on sale for the next two weeks and the price will not vary for student body card holders. Buy T-shirts during fourth and fifth periods.

THE CHARACTERS of Serramonte's spring play have not yet been casted, but the musical Theater class is rehearsing just the same!

The students have been introduced to the music of the Broadway smash hit, and currently are working on the major songs of the production, limbering exercises and controlled vocal lessons.

The performances will be on the first two weekends in May.

County Roadblock Results in Arrests

A county roadblock, set up early today after a series of burglaries, resulted in the arrest of two El Granada men on a variety of charges.

Arrested were Gerald Ball, 19, and a 17-year-old companion on charges of armed robbery, first degree burglary, conspiracy, possession of a sawed off shotgun and possession of a loaded firearm and other related charges, according to Daly City police.

At 2 a.m. today, police said, two men walked up to the open door of an apartment at 311 Price St., Daly City, and asked an occupant, Salvadore Garcia, for a cigarette lighter.

One of the men, Garcia, told police, took out a sawed off shotgun and fled in a car after half an hour, police said.

Just minutes later at Chevron Service Station at Bayshore and MacDonald in Daly City, a man wielding a sawed-off shotgun approached the attendant and demanded the cash register money.

Daly City police linked the identifications of the two men at the two incidents and the county roadblock was set up.

At about 3:40 a.m., Officer Bron Crosswell of the South San Francisco Police Department saw the vehicle described by victims at both incidents and stopped the occupants at Hickey and El Camino, where they were arrested.

Route 380 Linkup Stirs Opposition

By JANET PARKER

Political forces from both sides of the Pacifica debate over extension of Route 380 have been keeping close tabs with the Metropolitan Transit Commission.

Proposition A, which seeks community opinion of the proposed route from San Bruno, will be on the March 2 ballot, and Pacificans have attended MTC meetings in San Francisco, Concord, San Rafael and San Jose in recent months, arguing their position.

As at past public hearings on the annual MTC revision of its Regional Transportation Plan, the opportunity was provided for anti-380 and pro-380 forces to promote their campaigns.

The Pacifica City Council has been split 3-2, with the majority favoring the freeway extension to their coastal city.

The opponents spoke loudest at last week's hearing, but MTC chairman Joe Bort told the speakers their words were wasted because "we don't plan to approve any freeway for 380."

The proposed transportation revision deletes an extension of Route 380 from San Bruno to Pacifica. Now the freeway goes only from the United Airlines building in South San Francisco to San Bruno. The MTC says there is no money available to extend the road all the way to Pacifica.

Sy Mober, MTC public information officer, said a San Mateo Coast Corridor Study suggests instead that improvements be made to the winding three-lane Sharp Park Road that descends into Pacifica.

MTC officials, he said, are well aware of Pacifica's upcoming election which can have an influence on the commission decisions.

The commission will hold another hearing Feb. 20 in Oakland and final adoption of the revisions is expected March 24.

Pacifica also was well represented at a Feb. 5 MTC meeting when City Manager Don Weidner spoke of Pacifica's needs.

He told the commission that Sharp Park Road is the only entrance from the east and closes when any major accident occurs.

In the case of an earthquake and possible blockage of the coast highway north and south of the city, Pacifica would be left with only Sharp Park Road for access to adjacent communities.

Councilwoman Grace McCarthy, who has consistently voted for the extension, said the San Mateo Coast Corridor Study discourages planning ahead.

The councilwoman said Sharp Park Road will never be a substitute for Route 380, which is needed to provide direct access to the airport and to north-south freeways.

It would serve commuters, tourists and recreation seekers, Mrs. McCarthy said.

Mayor Stan Farber told the MTC its report calls for "improving transit," but a bus couldn't enter Pacifica from the east because of the problems with Sharp Park Road.

"For us to go from Pacifica to the county seat now, it is necessary to go into downtown San Francisco and get a bus for Redwood City, doubling back," Farber said.

Body Is Found

A young woman whose body was found floating in the ocean outside the Pillar Point breakwater early Monday afternoon apparently had been beaten and shot in the back before being dumped into the waves, sheriff's deputies reported today.

The body was first discovered about a quarter-mile outside the breakwater by Craig D. Glasco, 27, 413 Old County Road, Belmont, who was returning in his 26-foot fishing boat.

Licensed Drivers Added to Jury List

By DUANE SANDUL

Those who have avoided registering to vote in order to escape jury duty may be in for a surprise. San Mateo County is supplementing its system to peg potential jurors — the list of licensed drivers.

Jury and Court Commissioner J. Paul Peoples said in an interview that his office is combining a system of registered voters and licensed drivers to select names for future master jury panels.

He estimates that inclusion of those licensed to drive but not registered to vote will add more than 100,000 names to the current potential panel of about 250,000.

Peoples said that new court rules provide for counties to use records of the Department of Motor Vehicles to supplement their voter registrar's list. The law went into effect Jan. 1.

Names of potential jurors are drawn randomly by computer each quarter.

Peoples said that the system will be arranged to avoid duplication of persons who are both registered to vote and are licensed to drive, eliminating a "double" chance of being selected for potential jury duty.

"Registering to vote has never been a requirement to serve on jury panels," Peoples explained. "It has been a convenient way to compile lists."

There are about 380,000 persons registered to drive in San Mateo County.

Peoples said that besides providing a larger pool from which to select jurors, he hopes that the new system "will eliminate in the minds of the public that they can escape jury duty by not registering to vote."

He added, "It must be emphasized that jury duty is not a voluntary action, but a civic and legal responsibility."

Another new law eliminates all categories of exemptions, bringing an end to the history of exclusion of attorneys, policemen, firemen, legislators, elected officials, clergymen, teachers and doctors from jury panels.

"Our master panel has been changed to include these categories," Peoples said.

He asserted that many doctors have called his office to report scheduling problems which prevent them from serving on lengthy juries.

"Most are willing to serve for limited times," Peoples said.

He explained that anyone who receives a jury duty summons can contact his office if a hardship exists, and explain it. If his office agrees, the name will be dropped until the hardship eases.

In any event, a potential jury can try to convince a trial judge of a hardship at the time of the case.

Another change in the state law may require more than the 50,000 persons summoned for jury duty last year. Of that number, 22,000 actually served.

Peoples said that the number of preemptory challenges (excusing a potential juror without stating a reason) has been increased from eight to 10 in civil cases, and from 10 to 13 in criminal cases.

"This will require summoning more jurors, but we have not yet increased the panel," Peoples said.

The commissioner said that the California Judicial Council is recommending in guidelines to state courts to keep the amount of jury service to a minimum when reasonable, and to minimize hardships by deferring service rather than excusing persons outright.

In recognition of the new guidelines, the county judges have adopted a policy which allows any person who has made three appearances in one quarter for jury selection without being chosen to be excused.

The policy also allows a juror who has served on a case which culminated with a verdict to request to be discharged for the remainder of the quarter.

There's one aspect to jury duty which has remained unchanged for about 20 years — jurors are still paid only $5 per day, plus mileage for one-way only.

Women Slate Two Meetings

The Woman's Auxiliary of the San Mateo County Medical Society will have their annual dinner meeting Feb. 24.

Ken Incovone will speak on the "Responsibilities of the Secret Service." This event will be at the Villa Chartier in San Mateo with a social hour at 6:30 followed by a roast beef dinner at 7:15 p.m.

Contact Mrs. James Rudis of San Carlos or Mrs. Robert Jay of Redwood City for reservations by Feb. 19.

Carol Hokans, graphoanalyst, will be the guest speaker at the club's 11:30 a.m. meeting March 9 at the home of Mrs. Carl Benninghoven of Hillsborough.

Graphoanalysis is the study of individual strokes of handwriting in order to identify the character and personality of the writer. It is a method of personality assessment based on research that was conducted over a period of fifty years.

Mrs. Robert Jay of Redwood City and Mrs. James Rudis of San Carlos are accepting reservations for the meeting and box luncheon.

Women's Degree At State

The Women's Studies Committee of San Francisco State University recently announced plans for California's first Women's Studies bachelor's degree program.

The program is expected to be in operation by the Fall 1976 semester. While classes aimed at women are offered at campuses throughout the state, the new B.A. will be the first to offer a full program and grant a degree specifically entitled "Women's Studies."

Dr. Roberta Johnson, coordinator of Women's Studies and a member of the Political Science department at SFSU, explains that the new Women's Studies B.A. will include women-oriented courses in such areas as health, the arts and business, as well as the longer-established social science classes.

Dogs May Help Guard Schools

By VERN KROGH

Security dogs as a last resort to curb vandalism in schools?

That was the possibility broached by trustees of the San Mateo Union High School District at the first of their "travelling meetings" Feb. 11 at Crestmoor High School in San Bruno.

"I would hate to see us use security dogs," Mrs. Ruth Steiner, board president, commented after school officials reported that despite students efforts to cut down vandalism most of it occurs at night and on weekends and is done largely by non-students.

The school board was especially concerned by the $12,732 in vandalism which occurred during the first six months of the current school year at Capuchino High School in San Bruno.

Maurice Gonzalez, director of maintenance and engineering operations for the district, reported that the money went largely toward replacing smashed windows.

He said that even though many glass panels on corridors have been replaced by plexiglass, the school has still been experiencing "a rash of vandalism" as intruders knocked out the plastic panels. He reported that a meeting had been held with the police chiefs of Millbrae and San Bruno, who recommended more lighting.

Trustee Joseph Castelli, who expressed special concern about the growing vandalism at the school, asked about the possibility of "on-campus police."

Janet Fraser, another administrator in the district, said a campaign in which high school students would go out to elementary schools to discuss the problem with younger children has been discussed.

Gonzalez reported it may be necessary to go to non-breakable plastic or steel panels. He reported that Capuchino seems to be a weekend gathering place for teenagers from throughout the northern part of the county. He said the use of dogs has been discussed — but only as a last resort.

Trustee Carol Gonella noted the danger of smaller children being bitten by dogs.

Mrs. Steiner cited one case in which a dog had been placed on a leash and was muzzled "and that worked like a charm."

Mrs. Gonella suggested that the administration look into what other districts are doing.

Even though vandalism figures appear to be growing each year, Wayne Preston, assistant superintendent for business, said "The figures are misleading. They are not really growing but they are not getting any better, either."

Dr. August R. Sellery, district superintendent, reported that despite a program urging student participation by putting money saved from less vandalism back into student body funds has not worked out, but only led to "student frustration" because most of the vandalism has occurred when schools are closed.

Deputy Superintendent Paul V. Claudon told the board that no noticeable trends have been noted of students dropping out of school early under a new state law which allows them to drop out if they pass high school proficiency tests. This year, he reported, approximately 30 have dropped out, but most of those were 18 and would have left school anyway. He was asked to make a more definite report at the board's next meeting.

Trustees expressed their desire to find sites for summer school classes in Foster City if enough students sign up for them. Sellery had recommended that summer school classes be held in the district's existing seven high schools.

The board moved ahead to adopt a "no smoking" policy at its meetings, with periodic recesses so smokers can go outside and smoke.

As part of its travelling meeting policy, the board scheduled meetings for Feb. 25 at the Mills High School cafeteria, March 10 at Burlingame High School, March 24 at Capuchino, April 7 at San Mateo, April 28 at Peninsula, May 12 at Hillsdale and May 26 at Aragon.

DeBernardi Lauds Decision on Transit

Daly City Council candidate Michael R. DeBernardi recently lauded the action of the California Public Utilities Commission for putting the Northgate Transit System on a six-month probationary status.

"It's unfortunate, however, that a state agency has to do what should have been done by the City Council in Daly City," DeBernardi said.

DeBernardi said the people of Daly City deserve better treatment and better transportation than has been provided by what he called the "Toonerville Trolley" in recent years.

The council has had opportunities to clamp down on the local several times but has always held back for some unknown reason, DeBernardi said.

"Meanwhile, the people have had to put up with curses and insults from the drivers (who own the buses), irregular hours, and unsafe equipment," DeBernardi said.

DeBernardi served on the West Bay Rapid Transit District Board of Directors.

He thinks funds are available to assist the city in getting a better transportation system.

The City Council has just not taken enough of an active interest in the transportation problem to do anything about it, he said.

CC Limit On Students

The California Postsecondary Education Commission Tuesday recommended that the state end a five per cent enrollment cap on the state's 103 community colleges.

Instead, the commission recommended that the state institute a new formula for reimbursing districts which would benefit poor districts in that, as enrollment rose, they would receive more state aid per pupil than a rich district.

Such a recommendation, if approved by the legislature and governor, would probably help a district like the San Mateo Community College District.

Presently, San Mateo receives no state aid for any new enrollment over the five per cent limit imposed by the state. That means the local taxpayers must pay the entire cost for each student over the five per cent cap.

That is particularly relevant this year because it has been announced that San Mateo's total enrollment has risen by 8 per cent over the fall of 1974 to an all-time high of 30,701.

But that is a mixed blessing for the taxpayer. The more students the district receives over the 5 per cent limit, the more local tax dollars must be provided to pay for them.

In addition to that, the district is at the bottom of the scale in terms of state aid anyway. It receives only $125 per student up to the cap.

The commission which made the recommendations was meeting in Burlingame Feb. 10.

Teglia Names Committee

Albert M. Teglia, candidate for the Daly City Council, has announced the following campaign committee.

Campaign coordinators are Bud Durham, Carl Hillsman, Tom Nuris, Virginia Tierney and Joseph Zanobini; secretary, Verna Teglia; and treasurer, Gilbert Toscano. There are many steering committee members.

Teglia, life-long resident of the Daly City-Colma area, currently is serving his third term on the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District, is Supervisor of Operations and Grounds, San Mateo Union High School District.

County GOP Sets Meeting

The San Mateo County Collier, chairman, has Republican Party Central announced. Committee will be meeting Feb. 19 at 8 p.m. at the will be studied at the meeting, Burlingame City Hall, Russing, and indications are it will place priority on grassroots activity in both precinct and fund-raising activities.

"The Republican Party will greatly boost its chances for electoral victory this year," Collier predicted.

Guatemala: There Are No Words

The following is the text of a broadcast appeal received this morning in South San Francisco from TG9HS, one of the few radio stations on the air in Guatemala following a series of killer earthquakes:

"It takes terrible moments in life like this to find out who your true friends really are. The last few days have been full of those terrible moments. How can you describe an earthquake that has killed 25,000, injured 50,000 and left a million poor people homeless? Truly, there are no words."

"Today, the people of California have shown their true colors. Our sincere thanks to Governor Brown for the medical supplies, food and hospital units that you have sent."

"Today, we are starting a campaign. Our goal is to provide a home for each of these homeless families."

"It costs $1,000 each for these homes. We will build them with our own hands, but we must build 100,000."

"Contributions may be sent to the Committee of Construction, Post Office Box 395, Guatemala City. All of these donations will be used to build homes."

"We will need building materials, for this is a big enterprise."

"May you never know the sound and the pain that you feel when your country cries."

"God bless you all."

Kjell Laugerud, president

SSF 'Road Show' To Visit Philly

A performing road show of 40 El Camino High School students will be South San Francisco's half of the first official exchange between it and Philadelphia, South San Francisco's bicentennial sister city.

The Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce recently contacted leaders of the South San Francisco's Chamber of Commerce seeking an exchange of representatives in the performing arts field.

Leslie Davis, chamber executive vice-president, said he immediately thought of the El Camino troupe and asked if they could prepare a show for Philadelphia citizens in April.

There has been no indication yet by Philadelphia chamber leaders who they will send to South San Francisco as a representative.

El Camino Principal Robert Keropian told the City Council last week that the students perform under the banner "The South San Francisco Show."

The traveling troupe has been performing at club meetings, luncheons and conventions in the county for 12 years and only a few years ago represented the city in a European tour.

"Financially, it will be a significant effort on our part," Keropian told the council. Although the students will be provided lodging in Philadelphia homes, all fares and other expenses will cost about $13,500.

Davis said about $11,700 already has been raised, including a $4,000 commitment made last week by City Council.

Other contributors are the performing arts and band fund at El Camino. The Chamber of Commerce and parents of the roadshow cast have agreed to underwrite all expenses not donated by others.

Keropian still must obtain the formal approval of the South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees.

At a recent board meeting, trustees questioned whether they legally could provide financial assistance for the performers. By law, all school board appropriations to students must be for educational purposes. The board's attorney is giving an answer.

Ted Marr, El Camino High performing arts department chairman, and his wife Lys, a drama teacher, are advisers for the student group.

He directs the musical portion of the show and she is the dance and drama instructor and choreographer.

Mr. and Mrs. Marr, Keropian and Davis will travel with the students to Philadelphia.

Marr said he doesn't want the Philadelphia trip to turn into an all-out fundraising project. The troupe went through a fund-raiser in planning for Europe, "and I swore we would never do it again."

The students will continue Friday rehearsals and they are preparing a 16-minute bicentennial production number to add to their repertoire.

The trip tentatively is slated for April 5-9.

Cross-Country Ski Trip for Newlyweds

Cross-country skiing in Yosemite and exploring Carmel on their honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Alan Levinson (Nancy Lynn Ross) who were married recently at Temple Judea in San Francisco.

Rabbi Herbert Morris performed the 7 o'clock rites for the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold L. Ross of Hillsborough, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Levinson of Daly City.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds greeted well-wishers at a dinner dance at the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Barrett Baskin of San Francisco and Judith Ann Ross of San Diego, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Rick Vagy of Los Angeles. Nancy wore a lace and satin gown detailed with seed pearls and a sweetheart neckline and a long train, and members of her bridal party chose dusty rose colored dresses.

A San Mateo High School graduate, the new Mrs.

Levinson earned her bachelor's degree at the University of California at Berkeley and her teaching credential at the University of San Francisco where her husband received his bachelor of science degree in computer science. She has been teaching in Novato.

Supervisors Question Parks Survey Cost

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors wants more time to review the proposed work program for revision of the Parks and Recreation Element of the County General Plan.

At its meeting last week, board members questioned one of the recommendations of County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe that a consultant be retained to undertake a $20,000 survey of the recreation needs and desires of county residents to help in determining priorities.

Supervisor John M. Ward asked why the survey couldn't be undertaken as a project by a college class, saving the cost of a consultant.

Woolfe said that could be done, but there is the question of time, with the new Parks and Recreation Element scheduled for adoption by June 1977.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciochio Jr. said the work program is "not convincing" and that he intended to vote against it.

"The problems are not so complicated that they can't be solved within the county," Bacciochio said.

At the suggestion of Board Chairman William H. Royer, the board decided to continue the matter for one on week to allow time for further review of the proposed program.

Film Scheduled On Hang Gliding For Eucalyptus

"Hang Gliding Injuries in California," an audiovisual presentation by John Tongue, M.D., will be presented at Mary's Help Hospital at 10 a.m. Feb. 21.

The one-hour program will be held in the auditorium on the ground floor of the hospital and is free of charge.

Dr. Tongue's report is the first comprehensive analysis of hang gliding or sky surfing injuries to be completed worldwide.

The report will review over 100 nonfatal hang gliding accidents, including the causes and patterns of injury. Data from 36 of 38 known fatalities will also be discussed.

Hang gliding is a rapidly growing sport. It is estimated that there are 25,000 participants nationwide.

In his presentation, Dr. Tongue will stress the need for new safety equipment, participant education and physician awareness.

Dr. Tongue is a third-year resident in the San Francisco Combined Orthopedics Residency Program. He is a graduate of St. Louis University Medical School and works at Kaiser Hospital, San Francisco.

Due to the limited number of seats available for this presentation, reservations must be made in advance. For reservations, or for additional information about the program, call Barbara Christensen at Mary's Help Hospital, 992-4000, extension 407.

The U.S. Postal Service will be allowed to remove three dead eucalyptus trees on its San Bruno property, but the City Council wants some compensation for trees the city claims the Postal Service "multilisted."

Other councilmen said they disliked the word "retribution," maintaining that the Postal Service had made an honest mistake in topping the trees.

The council, however, did vote to authorize the city staff "to make every effort to get the Postal Service to provide relief of some sort to the city for the damaged trees."

Feb. 3, the city put a stop work order on the trimming and topping when it was discovered that unauthorized work was being performed.

The city issued a permit to the Postal Service last summer to allow the trimming of trees, but did not approve topping of the eucalyptus.

Tom Arbuckle, a representative of the Postal Service, told the City Council last week that the Postal Service had inadvertently let a contract to a Pacific gardening company both to trim and to top the trees.

Arbuckle apologized to the council for the topping of the trees, and asked only that the council allow the gardening company to clear tree branches that already had been cut and to remove three dead trees in the eucalyptus grove that fronts the Postal Service building.

The council granted the request, but demanded that a member of the city staff be present during the cleanup.

Councilman Richard Griffith asked City Atty. Joseph Galligan if the city could impose penalties on the Postal Service for violating provisions of the permit.

Galligan responded "the federal government can do whatever it wants."

Arbuckle explained that the Postal Service is not compelled to ask permission of a municipality to perform work on its property, but emphasized that the Postal Service "is sensitive to the needs and desires of communities," and always attempts to cooperate with cities.

"That's the reason we came to you and asked permission to trim the trees," said Arbuckle. "What we did was not what you (the council) wanted, and I apologize."

3 Sisters Play Set

The San Francisco Actors Ensemble will open its season with a production of Paul Zindel's drama, "Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," Feb. 20, at 8:30 p.m. and continuing on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through March 27 at their theater, 2940 16th St.

The comedy-drama, directed by Stegani Priest, probes the tortured relationship of three sisters whose lives have reached a point of crisis.

Award

The San Francisco State University Cinematheque has been awarded a $5000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to help bring professional filmmakers to the campus for short stays.

The Cinematheque is bringing Emile de Antonio Feb. 18-19, Frederick Wiseman on March 25, and Lindsay Anderson on March 31.

'Topping Off' Ban

The Board of Directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has enacted a regulation prohibiting the topping off of motor vehicle gasoline tanks.

Topping off is adding more gasoline to the fuel tank after a vapor recovery nozzle has automatically shut off.

The action was taken by the board in response to claims that spillage and the syphoning of gasoline back into the service station tanks could take place using the newly required vapor recovery nozzles.

That can happen if the gas tank has been filled and the service station attendant attempts to top off the tank.

GIRL SCOUTING

Girl Scout Thinking Day will be observed locally with a special international songs and games holiday slated for 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the Westmoor High Little Theatre Feb. 22.

This international occasion is observed by all Girl Scouts and Girl Guides.

The chairwoman is Joan Stewart of Daly City, according to Daly City Special Events Chairwoman Caroline Futrell.

Troops must sign up with either Mrs. Stewart or Mrs. Futrell to be assured theatre seating space. All girls and adults are strongly encouraged to wear their Girl Scout uniforms.

All area Girl Scouts, Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes, Seniors and adults are welcome at the ceremonies.

The Service Team of the Daly City Girl Scout Association will meet Feb. 19 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the home of Roz Morino, 1711 Sweetwood Drive, Colma.

Chairman will be Daly City Girl Scout Association Chairman Margaret Connolly. The meeting will discuss late winter and early spring events and planning.

Brownies may also swim free of charge at the Jefferson High School pool from 7 to 9 p.m. that night.

Each girl must be 48 inches tall and have a green Girl Scout permission slip. There must be one adult to accompany every six Brownies. All volunteer lifeguard rules will be obeyed.

Fire Station 5 was the destination recently for the girls of Daly City Junior troop 2855 working on their "Active Citizen" badge. The troop is led by Annette Chiappari and Sue Freitas.

Julie Baccell, Kristy Beckman, Cindy Bonomi, Shknon Carroll, Virginia Chiappari, Rene Cox, Jackie Ghio, Leesha Gotelli, Julie Lopez, Lisa Marren, Maria Rodriguez, Linda Running, Tina Smith and Fatima Solorzano listened to Acting Capt. Jay Modglani and firemen John Powell and Ron Raymond discuss fire hazards and fire equipment.

Students from Spring Valley School in Millbrae will participate in a skate-a-thon at Yankee Doodle Skate Country in Burlingame Feb. 29.

U.S. imports of spices in 1974 set an all-time record — more than 306 million pounds. Coupled with domestic production of spices, this made America's total consumption of spices approximately 408.5 million pounds.

George Hartwick will conduct flag ceremonies at both services. Members of the church's Bell Choir, directed by James Groves, will perform selections from their repertoire of 18th century music.

In addition the chancel choir will sing selections from a collection scores of Early American church music.

A display of beautiful models of famous and historical American buildings is being presented by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Higgins. The church library will offer a display of books and periodicals being presented pertaining to the bicentennial celebration.

Members of the Business and Professional Women's group will serve refreshments following each service.

The public is cordially invited to attend the formal service at 11 a.m. or the "In-The-Round" service at 9 a.m. Mrs. Kuntstorf said.

ONE OF the highlights of the recent Bicentennial program sponsored by the Daly City Friends of the Library was the delicious assortment of baked goods served at the conclusion of the evening.

The next major program being sponsored by the friends will be a book review Feb. 26 at 10 a.m.

Spring Opera Opens

Spring Opera Theater will inaugurate its 1976 season with Jacques Offenbach's internationally popular "La Perichole," Feb. 19, at the Curran Theatre in downtown San Francisco.

Additional performances will be on Feb. 21, 29 and March 12.

Kurt Herbert Adler, general director of San Francisco Opera (which produces Spring Opera Theater) said: "We are particularly pleased to open Spring Opera Theater's 15th season with 'La Perichole,' a family musical entertainment which has never before been performed by any of the companies in the San Francisco Opera family."

Spring Opera Theater was founded for the specific purpose of presenting unusual or rarely performed works which could be most effective when sung in English, with an emphasis on theatrical elements. "La Perichole" indeed achieves all of those goals.

Mezzo soprano Maria Ewing, one of America's fastest-rising, most talented young artists, will interpret the title role of the gypsy street singer who charms the Spanish Viceroy in 18th century Peru.

Tenor Neil Rosenheim, who made his Spring Opera Theater debut in the 1974 production of "The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein," will sing Piquillo, Perichole's lover and street-singing associate.

The most unusual opera debut of the season will be that of Broadway actor Leonard Frey, as the viceroy, the third member of the love triangle, who woos and loses the heroine.

Frey, a veteran performer of stage, screen and television, is best known for his roles as Motel the tailor in the stage and film versions of "Fiddler on the Roof" and Harold in "Boys in the Band."

Also making Spring Opera Theater debuts are soprano Susan Smith (Guadalupe), who has recently sung major roles with Tucson Opera and the Wolf Trap Company; soprano Claudette Peterson (Estrella); mezzo soprano Carolyn Lewis (Virginita), and actor Herb Foster (Tarapote and the Old Prisoner). Don Pedro and Pantallás will be sung by baritone Daniel Sullivan and tenor Orva Hoskinson.

Offenbach, dubbed by Rossini the "Mozart of the Champs Elysees," was the idol of Parisian theatergoers and captured the imaginations of all of the caricaturists of his day, including Daumier. "La Perichole" was the last of his great opera bouffes, which not only satirized the France of Louis Napoleon but the art of grand opera itself.

Tickets for the performances at the Curran Theatre are available at the Curran Box Office, (415) 673-4400; telephone reservations are accepted.

Board Restores Mental Health Fund

Restoration of $84,342 which was trimmed from mental health programs during last June's county budget study sessions was approved Feb. 10 by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett recommended the action, noting his department has determined that careful cost containment and budget projections have indicated there is sufficient funding for partial restoration of high priority programs.

All of the services recommended for restoration are directed to reducing hospitalization and promoting more effective community care programs for the mentally ill. Dr. Pickett said.

Programs approved for additional funding for the remainder of the fiscal year:

- Napa State Hospital liaison services, $8,429.
- South County Outreach program, $5,455.
- Caminar (operation of El Camino House, a halfway facility, and Redwood House, a 24-hour treatment program for acute and sub-acute mentally disordered patients, $15,000).
- Peninsula Suicide Prevention Center, $25,000.
- Our Lady of Guadalupe Health Center in Daly City, $20,000.
- Vocational Rehabilitation Services, $7,457.
- Training of staff for special programs and improving skills associated with crisis intervention, $3,000.

Teacher Seeks Demo Nomination to House

John McGuire of 215 Bonita Ave., Pacifica, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the 11th Congressional District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. The district runs from Daly City to Redwood City.

Leo J. Ryan of South San Francisco is the incumbent.

McGuire, the English Department chairman at South San Francisco Junior High and a lawyer, plans to gather the 3,000 signatures necessary to qualify as a candidate rather than pay a filing fee, an option allowed under a new state law.

He will be campaigning on the following issues:

- Energy: Unresolved, major health, safety, and economic scandals connected with the nuclear industry make it imperative that Congress call a moratorium on present nuclear plans. Other energy sources (wind, sun, waves, etc.) can be developed infinitely more safely and economically.

• Emerging Nations: A country with our ideals and resources should do no less than assist the developing nations in their efforts to become agriculturally independent. Congress must attempt to reach this objective without threatening the political integrity of these nations.

• Economy: Huge, new industries can be opened up to small and medium-sized businesses across the nation if we choose non-nuclear energy sources.

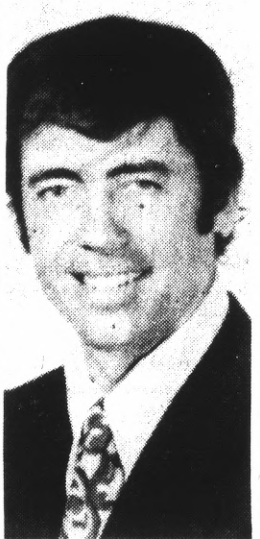

The manufacturing and installation of modern wind machines, solar collectors, etc., will not be restricted to the few, giant corporations who presently control the nuclear industry. Spread the wealth.

• Employment: Additional positive fallout which can be anticipated from a solar and wind energy economy will be the creation of an enormous number of jobs in the manufacturing and construction areas.

• Education: The greatly needed additional funding should not come from an increase in local property taxes, but from a change in our federal spending priorities.

• Exorbitant Military Spending: What is the significance of spending a large portion of our federal tax dollars to maintain a worldwide military balance when we already have the capacity to destroy this planet many times already?

The volunteer coordinators of the petition signing efforts are John Osness of Belmont, Joseph Green of Pacifica, and Robert Wasick of Redwood City.

Running Rises in Popularity

By JOHN HORGAN

Sam is a low-slung basset hound who lives in a suburban neighborhood in Burlingame.

In many respects, Sam is a typically relaxed denizen of that region which lies between San Mateo High School and Broadway Avenue in Burlingame.

Sam haunts a corner of Burlingame Avenue across the street from a Lutheran church.

On Sunday mornings, you can find Sam lying about in sedate splendor there in front of his master's home.

This past Sunday, however, Sam was up and about, his stomach barely clearing the sidewalk as he strode back and forth.

He was busy watching the sight of 300 or so men, women and children who were industriously padding past his house in running attire.

They were all participants in the annual West Valley Marathon. The course stretched from San Mateo High School, past Sam's house, all the way to Broadway and back again.

In all, the runners would plod over the course five times. The distance totalled 26 miles and 385 yards.

Sam and his neighbors are getting used to this yearly exercise. From all indications, no one around those parts gets particularly curious about those hordes of runners at all.

As the race progressed over several hours, the business of Sunday morning continued on schedule.

People mowed their lawns, trimmed their roses, strolled along the sidewalks and went to church.

They gave scant attention to all those healthy folks out there in the street, even as it began to drizzle.

"That's the way it should be," explained Len Wallace of the San Mateo Recreation Department later. "Running is in nowadays."

It has become so conventional that runners now affect all manner of unusual garb to make their presence felt.

On Sunday, there were at least two gentlemen who wore earphones while they ran so they could listen to music.

"They do that so they won't get bored, I guess," said one route director along Bloomfield Road.

Another runner wore a garish T-shirt proclaiming that he was a member of something called "The Buffalo Chips."

Even Sam gave them a second look.

Ken Dito (pronounce DE-toe) is not only the best unknown sports broadcast personality in the Bay Area, but he may also be the best, period, or at least among the top two or three.

The reason is simple. Dito does his weekly sports show, "Spotlight on Sports," (Wednesday, 7:30-8 p.m.; repeated on Thursday at 6:30) for San Francisco Cable Channel 6, and most people just don't associate good programming with cable television. They are wrong, at least in the case of "Spotlight on Sports."

A further irony of the situation is that Dito, a Daly City resident, can never be seen by his neighbors because Channel 6, of course, service, services only San Francisco cable subscribers.

But those who do watch Dito, and we are among them, have come to know him as an articulate, knowledgeable guy who runs an interesting, versatile, well-produced show, that can run from interviews with major league baseball scouts to training films of fighters, to fencing and frisbee demonstrations, to explanations of what constitutes good conformity in shows.

There is something for everyone, and even women with no particular interest in sports have been known to watch it. Dito, you see, is also good looking, and even has personality.

Dito's credentials to do such a program are impeccable, which is more than can be said for many of the mental midgets who clog the airwaves disguised as sportscasters.

A NATIVE San Franciscan, Dito was an All-City catcher at St. Ignace, where he was graduated in 1954, and went on to play at Cal for George Wolfman. An outstanding player, he played a lot of the very fastest semi-pro baseball the west had to offer, but he was born too soon and opted for a teaching credential at USF rather than a pro career.

In today's market, if he hand't quite made it to the biggies, he would have certainly been a very good AAA player.

He went into coaching, and ever since he has been the popular, respected head baseball and basketball coach at Aptos Junior High, in San Francisco his teams have won one city ba and basketball coach at Aptos Junior High, in San Francisco his teams have won one city baseball title and three city basketball championships.

Dito, a trained broadcaster, was for several years a popular East Bay disc jockey, but dropped out, "when the station started going to acid rock. It was driving me nuts."

He then landed at Channel 6, assisting longtime Bay Area sports announcer Bud Foster on "Spotlight on Sports." Dito learned under Foster — in our opinion, one of the best in the business — and was ready to step in when Foster went north to more lucrative fields.

Dito now owns the program, hustles his own sponsors, and comes up with the best possible production week after week without any dictating from the studio. It's a successful formula, and could, someday, be a success story. If only enough people would buy San Francisco cable and then regularly tune in on "Spotlight on Sports."

IF WE wanted to make a really bad pun, we would say that snow brings out the flakiness in the world. But we won't say that. And we won't, because we wouldn't want to snow you.

But it does seem that whenever it snows around these parts, strange things happen. Take for example the time it snowed when we were living in Daly City in the early sixties.

We had gotten home the night before from an alumni thing and didn't feel capable of steering our Volkswagen into our two-car garage, which says a lot for the drinks they used to pour downtown in those days.

So, for the first time in our life, we left the car out. Got up the next morning, squinted out the front window, and saw the neighborhood kids using the back of our car as a toboggan run.

We asked our mathematician wife to figure the odds on a juxtaposition of two oddities like our leaving the car outside and snow falling in Daly City, and she quit at ten million to one.

Now it's the evening of Feb. 4 and our home on Mt. Davidson is being bombarded by claps of thunder. This upsets our Siberian Husky sled dog, Vodka (well, would kind of a name would you expect of a spirited Russian?), no end, so we let her come to bed with us.

It's a little embarrassing, but on the other hand, here is a dog-wolf of which Jack London would have been proud. After all, she's beaten up every animal in the neighborhood from field mice to Great Danes. So she's entitled to a little fear.

WE AWAKE at 6 a.m., look out the window, and see five inches of snow on our back patio. At last Vodka's true environment has been delivered to her.

We fling the door open, look over to the bed, lift the covers, and command, "Come, husky, mush, mush."

Vodka charges out of bed, sets one webbed paw in the snow, and in the most startling turnaround since Christine Jorgenson, she's back in bed! Doesn't like snow!

Now it's the afternoon of Feb. 5, and we are just getting out of the barber's chair on West Portal Avenue in San Francisco, and the snow is coming down in sheets.

We look out the window, and see a white-haired man wearing a pork pie hat, a light jacket, and chewing on an unlit cigar, casually strolling down the street as if he's in Palm Springs.

We look again and it's Prescott Sullivan, the recently retired Examiner sports columnist — our hero. We quickly pay the barber and rush outside to say hello. Not five seconds have elapsed, but Sullivan has disappeared. And then we remember. There is a bar a few doors away. The door is just oozing shut.

WHAT A STORY! After all, how often can a retired gentleman from San Francisco get home late with liquor on his breath and legitimately tell his wife, "Sorry honey. I've been marooned in a bar. Got stuck in a snow storm."

For Sullivan it was the opportunity of a lifetime, and being an intelligent sort, he took quick advantage of it.

All of those Olympic controversies fostered by team coaches over who should have been qualified to participate in various events, could have been avoided if there were no coaches and no such thing as team competition. That's why coaches were moaning so much — because they thought certain athletes could do better for the team effort than others.

As we remember it Olympic competition is theoretically for individuals, not for the glory of the country of which those individuals are citizens. Coaches would be fine if they were just hanging around to help with technique — if their help were requested by the individual athletes.

But then we suppose, ideals should never be allowed to get in the way of the Olympic Games, or should we call them the Super Bowl of International Political Competition.

As for the athletes in the so-called Nordic events, they should get gold medals just for showing up.

Consider some of the following numbers: highest speed on skis, 118,928 m.p.h., recorded by American Steve McKinney of Kentucky in Italy July 10, 1975; average speeds on downhill racing courses in Olympic competition, about 50 m.p.h.; longest jump ever recorded, 554½ feet by Heinz Wosipiwo of East Germany at Obersdorf in East Germany on March 9, 1973.

LATEST NBA stats show Rick Barry now second in the league in steals behind Slick Watts. But what's amazing is that rookie Gus Williams, who plays less than half the time, is sixth in the league.

Also amazing is George Johnson's standing of sixth in the NBA in blocked shots, despite the fact that he plays quite a bit less than an average of half a game a tilt.

And while rookie guard Bubbles Hawkins only plays garbage time, he's making the best of it. Following are his stats for each 48 minutes he plays: 40 points a game on a shooting percentage of 47.9, 11.5 rebounds, five assists, four steals, 3.5 blocked shots.

In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has such children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals or milk for them they should contact the school.

In the operation of child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against because of his race, sex, color, or national origin.

Under the provisions of the policy the assistant principal will review applications and determine eligibility.

If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official he may make a request either orally or in writing to the District Superintendent whose address is 375 S. Mayfair, Rm. 214, Daly City, 94015, for a hearing to appeal the decision.

Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the Food Service Director where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

Bulldog Nine Just Misses

College of San Mateo's baseball team narrowly missed winning the CSM Tournament in final action Saturday.

The Bulldogs ripped Butte 10-0 and then had Santa Rosa rally for six runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to gain an 8-8 tie.

That deadlock, which couldn't go into extra innings because of tourney rules, cost CSM the title.

The Cal Poly JVs won the tourney after tying with West Valley and San Jose CC (all with 3-1 records) by scoring the most runs (38) of those teams in the tie.

CSM, which totaled 39 runs in the tourney, would have won if it had beaten Santa Rosa. CSM's record was 2-1-1.

Mike McMahon blanked Butte over eight innings on five hits. Dave Brower completed the shutout in the ninth.

Charlie Chetcuti, Don Peters and Juan Rodriguez collected three hits apiece for the Bulldogs. Rodriguez had three RBIs. Kevin Kane had two hits, both triples, and two RBIs.

Erol Akchurin, who had nine hits in the tourney, rapped out three hits and two RBIs against Santa Rosa. CSM had the potential winning run at second with two outs in the ninth when a sharp Randy Gomez liner was caught.

The Bulldogs open Thursday night in the three-day Ventura-Santa Barbara Tournament at Santa Barbara.

Serra Hosts 'Superstars'

A host of Bay Area sports luminaries are scheduled to appear at Serra High's Annual Sports Night, Wednesday night beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Among the guests will be Jim Barr, Jim Davenport, John Montefusco and Dave Rader of the Giants, Don Carriethers of the Montreal Expos, major league umpire Chris Pelekoudas plus Jim Davenport of the San Diego Padres and Rich Donner, CSM water polo coach.

Hunch Loop Signups Set

The sixth annual Toto's Basketball Skills Contest came to a conclusion Feb. 7 with the finals at Jefferson High School.

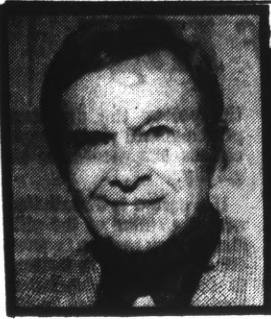

The contest is co-sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department and Toto's Restaurant.

The youngsters in each division (fourth grade through high school) competed in five events related to basketball. The five events were dribbling, around the world, free-throw shooting, passing accuracy and timed shooting.

The contest was exciting as six of the divisions were decided by 10 or fewer points.

The following youngsters are the 1976 boys and girls champions of the Toto's Basketball Skills Contest and the playgrounds that they represented.

Snow has finally blanketed the Sierras, much to the delight of the countless visitors to South Lake Tahoe who have been standing by for days waiting for it. Both Barney's and the South Tahoe Nugget report capacity business in all fields. "Entertainment the Nevada Way" is going full "jackpot" ahead. Joe Burton and his new Jazz Trio play subtle, sophisticated modern jazz nightly, Wednesdays through Saturdays, from 9 p.m. in the lounge of Martinelli's Steak Pit, in Millbrae. Happy to report that Tino's of San Carlos is catching on the way a first-class restaurant should. ## Cast Cares to Winds At The Tailwinds

Now under new management, The Tailwinds in Belmont is presenting a "2 for 1" dinner offer all through the month of February. This special offer, valid Monday through Thursday only, is new Manager Robert Kania's way of introducing his new kitchen operation. Steaks, prime rib and lobster are a part of the dinner special. Music in the adjacent lounge featuring popular favorites. "Bounty of the Sea" describes one of the many dinner specialties at the exotic Castaway, Coyote Point. It's a combination of fried scallops, filet of sole, prawns and other ocean-fresh seafoods, served with soup or house salad, potato or rice. Nick Gust invites you to phone in or write in your banquet reservations. And this means in Nick's, The Moonraker, or Captain Charles, three prestigious restaurants in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Lehr's Greenhouse restaurant in San Francisco, a beautiful garden in full bloom, is the perfect spot to sweep a girl off her feet during lunch or dinner. The flowers, plants and towering banana palm trees form one of the Bay Area's most unique — and romantic — settings. Every night is like Friday night at Vince's Italian and Seafood Restaurant. The precepts of a fine restaurant — good food, well served in a congenial atmosphere — are apparent here.

Phil Lehr's Steakery Flaming Steak Dishes

Gourmet flaming steak dishes are a spectacular treat at the elegant, new Phil Lehr's Steakery in the bottom of the San Francisco Hilton Tower. For a memorable dining experience, owner-host Phil Lehr recommends the Steak Diane, a house specialty. Besides many pizza and a la carte selections, Romano's in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica also features full course Italian dinners, which include soup, green salad, choice of French fries, spaghetti or ravioli, French bread and butter, ice cream or sherbet. Such entrees as Chicken Cacciatore with Fresh Mushrooms and Veal Parmigiana have won Romano's an impressive clientele. Another of the bright spots at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City is the large free parking facility, which is illuminated during the evening and is within a few steps of the restaurant's entrance. All items are homemade at the French-Deli, located on West Hillsdale Blvd., in San Mateo. Customers create their own French feast, and the specialties are numerous, including casseroles, Beef Bourguignonne and Coq au Vin. Quiche Lorraine (serves four) is just $3.25. Other items range from French pastries to assorted cheeses and wines.

SM Symphony

Highlights US Tradition

By ROBERT BURMISTER

Aaron Sten led the California Youth Symphony in a Sunday evening program at San Mateo High School devoted in large part to familiar American music. While the orchestral portions of the program, which is to be repeated Feb. 22 at Flint Auditorium, were not as weighty as Sten is prone to schedule, the young musicians were nonetheless able to demonstrate that their playing abilities were in very good order.

The bill began with a Suite on Traditional American Songs by William Ward. The suite of 16 songs, including such diverse selections as "Simple Gifts," "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands," "This Train is Bound for Glory," and "Polly Wolly Doodle," is arranged from a two volume collection of such put together recently by Ward.

He has arranged the Suite with great musical coherence, keeping the individual pieces intelligible yet subjugating them to the overall course of the piece. His orchestration was interestingly varied, but avoided being showy. There was exceptionally fine string work by the orchestra as well as good woodwind ensemble. The large brass section was mellow throughout, the trombones being especially commendable in their avoidance of a shallow sputtering sound.

Pianist Debbie Gong-Guy joined the orchestra for Franz Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 2 in A Major. Although Liszt, in theory, gave a passing nod to traditional four-movement structure, the concerto has the effect, really, of being a continuous one-movement form. In that respect it is a good example of the mid-19th century struggle to break free of confining forms inherited from the previous century.

Ms. Gong-Guy has an excellent technique and played the difficult piece with complete mastery. If there is anything to be overcome in her playing, it is only a tendency to sound quite literal in her interpretation. This results in a bit of a stiffness which manifests itself frequently in elastic inner tempos. At 17 she can assuredly be forgiven for a preoccupation with correctness. But as she matures one hopes that she will be encouraged to develop a freedom of expression that will make the music she plays totally her own.

Assistant conductor Richard Peterson led Tympanist Greg Maris and a brass octet in Jaromir Weinberger's "Concerto for Tympani." There is customarily included in California Youth Symphony programs some sort of contemporary work for brass and percussion under Peterson's direction. They often are extremely interesting. This was an exception. It sounded like a series of fanfares to nothing. The players did well with parts — the fault was not theirs. It was simply that they had nothing of substance with which to deal.

Robert Russell Bennett's "Symphonic Picture" of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" is a good example of an arranger wanting to put so much of his own identity into a work that he totally buries the original. Selections from the opera gave way to huge transitions by Bennett. A glittery showcase for an accomplished orchestra it was. "Porgy and Bess" it was not.

Kind, Resourceful Hams Aid Victims

By DAN COOK

Events following what the New York Times Tuesday called one of the worst natural disasters in Latin American history have been confused and spotty at best. But it now is clear that last Wednesday's earthquake which toppled major cities in Guatemala will have lasting effects.

Death toll estimates ran to 25,000 this morning, according to an official Guatemalan radio account, with the number of homeless placed at more than 1 million and 50,000 injured in the series of tremors.

The story that is seldom told in news accounts filed with rapidity and, unfortunately, often with little factual information, however, is that an intense human drama unfolded moments after Guatemala City stopped shaking.

Diplomatic offices throughout the United States suddenly found themselves totally cut off from their government, as communication lines were the first to fall in the stricken country.

The stranded diplomats turned to other means to get their relief messages through, to contact their loved ones at home, and to coordinate a massive effort to salvage the remains of their prostrate homeland.

Not infrequently, the scores of diplomats and other expatriot Guatemalans, including those in the Bay Area, turned to amateur radio to get their messages through.

Among them was the San Francisco Consul General, Vicente Morales Monterrosa, who, along with his staff, has spent hundreds of hours broadcasting relief messages to his countrymen.

Morales has appeared, or has had a subordinate appear, daily at the South San Francisco amateur radio station of Donald Johnson at 222 Alta Vista Ave., where powerful transmitters have linked the North County city with Guatemala City around the clock.

The first Guatemalan station on the air was TG9HS, which began broadcasting several hours after the first, and most potent, quake.

Since that first broadcast last Wednesday, TG9HS, with a diminutive lady named Bela Russ at the mike, has been in constant contact with relief organizations throughout North, Central and South America. The wife of an American and former resident of Washington state, she has been tireless and precise in her efforts.

A hastily-formed network of American and Guatemalan stations was formed, with two Americans, Jim of Harlingen, Tex., and Don of Grants Pass, Ore., volunteering as net control stations. They have been on the air day and night since the first shock, and have worked in tandem with friends to keep the stations on the air for the duration.

Jim and Don have spent a major part of their air time coordinating the traffic of the net and chasing unrealizing intruders off the frequency in the crowded amateur radio band.

The drama of the rescue effort was soon to unfold, both on the jerry-rigged emergency network, and on the lives of Bay Area Guatemalans.

Following the first earthquake, the first reports of damages and of deaths began to filter down. First pegged at 500 by TG9HS, the count was to climb fearfully throughout the first week of the country's ordeal.

"This is W5GBX, net control for TG9HS," Jim said into his microphone periodically. "We are handling diplomatic and medical emergency information only. Please keep the channel clear."

The stations listening began to fall into a lineup, including Johnson's. A stream of volunteer amateurs began to filter in and out of Johnson's ample station.

Science Fiction Is Topic

Science fiction literature will be discussed by Alfred Kraig, San Mateo City Librarian at a meeting of the Friends of the Daly City Library at 10 a.m. Feb. 26 in the community cultural room, Serramonte Library, 400 Serramonte Drive.

Kraig's review will concentrate primarily on the works of Isaac Asimov. Asimov, still writing at this time, is the author of 125 books.

Kraig, who has been a science fiction enthusiast since 1934 and has a very large personal collection, has been associated with many science fiction organizations.

He was graduated from the University of California in 1946 and the University of Southern California Library School in 1948. He is a native of Michigan and was worked with a library there for six years.

Since then Kraig has been with a library in Washington for 18 years and with the San Mateo City Library for the past three years.

Reservations will be accepted at the meeting for a no-host luncheon following the program. The luncheon will be at the New Southern Restaurant, 975 El Camino Real, South San Francisco.

ACT Will Present 60s Play

The American Conservatory Theater will present the first touring engagement of "Kennedy's Children," the recent London and New York hit about shattered dreams of the sixties. The play will run March 2-28.

The official opening is March 3, with a single reduced price preview performance March 2 at the Marines' Memorial Theater.

Under the direction of Clive Donner, the Michael Harvey production stars Shirley Knight in her unanimously acclaimed role as a would-be sex goddess whose decline began, not with the assassination of John Kennedy but with Marilyn Monroe's death.

Other featured members of the original Broadway cast are also included for the San Francisco run of Robert Patrick's tough and tender barroom drama.

In the play, five representative figures from the sixties find themselves on a rainy night in a bar on New York's Lower East Side. Fueled by booze, they pour out their stories in fevered spurts of monologue, providing an incisive portrait of that generation's wistful hopes and disenchantment.

Tickets for "Kennedy's Children" will go on sale to the general public Feb. 23 at A.C.T.'s Geary Theater box office and all agencies.

Lecture Set On Sacraments

Rev. Kenan Osborn, president of the Franciscan School of Theology at Berkeley, will present three lectures entitled: "Sacraments: Magic or Mystery" at St. Andrew's Church in Daly City on March 1, 8, and 15 at 8 p.m.

While a noted theologian, Father Osborn is known for his ability to communicate in simple, straightforward language.

Further details on his lecture series may be obtained by contacting St. Andrew's.

'Equus': More Than Just a Horse Story

By JACK RUSSELL
"Equus," by Peter Shaffer, is a play about horses as the Book of Job is about a man with a skin problem. The current offering of the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco is a multi-level drama concerning the mental problems of a 17-year-old Hampshire stable groom and his despairing psychiatrist.

It is mounted splendidly by director William Ball who errs only in striking for the obvious at times. It showed clearly to an opening night audience why it won the Tony Award and the New York Drama Critics Award. Shaffer became haunted by the casual mention of him of an actual case in which a youth blinded with a spike five horses in his care.

From this sequence he constructed a play which delves deeply into the psyche and the issues which intrigue the author.

As he did in his superb "Royal Hunt of the Sun" Shaffer concerns himself with the worship by people and what happens when gods are destroyed by one race.

As the Spaniards destroyed the Incan Gods and implanted their own, so does modern psychiatry curb worship and attempt substitution.

Dr. Martin Dysart shouts out in a moment of self-revelation, "Doctors can only kill passion, they cannot create it."

Shaffer would not argue, certainly, that it is better to blind a horse in passion than to live a sterile life but he uses the metaphor to sing out for feeling, not repression.

As Dr. Dysart seeks to uncover the reasons why young Alan Strang acted in such an inexplicable manner one discovers his own problems.

He is married to a life-denying woman (they have not kissed in six years). He reads and dreams about ancient Greece but admits wryly that when he goes there he cannot break from his civilized mold and is burdened with the trappings of society including pills and medicine.

Thus the two tormented souls find some understanding at the end in a drama filled with the symbols of the conquistador and the centaur, the man on the horse, transmuted in modern society by the cowboy in the television western.

As Dr. Dysart, Peter Donat has another meaty role which has been made famous by Anthony Hopkins, Anthony Perkins and now Richard Burton on Broadway.

He is outstanding in his nervous pitch and compassion.

Daniel Zippi, as the youth, is excellent also, surpassing those on Broadway.

He makes vivid the religious fears shown in his worship of the horses and his tentative sexual explorations.

Megan Cole and Charles

Hallahan are fine also as the pivotal parents, a typical British couple — he with his atheism and socialism and she with her colored-print religion and liberal Bible stories.

The impressionable youth replaces his religious icons with his horses and the tug of war begins.

Fred Olster has a small but crucial part as the magistrate who asks Dysart for help in determining the sanity of the youth and Raye Birk is compassionate as the bewildered stable owner.

Ball uses five actors on stylized stilts to portray the horses with curving metal heads. They create a somber and yet moving presence.

The key to the entire drama unravels in the final moments as the "gods" witness a profane act and must be destroyed.

It is only here that Ball falters and drives for the sensational. He stages the blinding of the horses in a controlled and powerful way. He is unable, however, to handle the attempted seduction in a similar way and the nudity of the young boy and girl, played well by Janice Garcia of San Jose, is more embarrassing than touching. Ball owes it to Shaffer to find a better way to handle his penultimate action than the glare of lights and naked writhings.

The audience members seated on the stage also does not add to the drama although Ball is attempting to gain a clinical impact.

It would be better to reserve the recesses of the stage for the mystery of the outer limits.

Still, it is a powerful drama and by far the best of the current ACT productions at the Geary Theatre.

Dealers Told Post No Prices

The legal counsel for 19 San Bruno service station dealers has advised the City Council that he has told the dealers they may remove all signs displaying the price of gasoline that are not required by the California Business and Professions Code.

Attorney for the dealers, Richard Hensen, said the state code provides that service station dealers post the price of gasoline only on the gasoline pumps.

In his letter to the City Council, Hensen said it was his opinion that a city ordinance mandating all San Bruno service stations to post prices of gasoline on signs clearly visible from abutting or adjacent streets or highways is "invalid and unenforceable."

"Our opinion is based on the fact that the state... has already adopted a comprehensive scheme of regulation in the same area (gas price posting) and the fact that the ordinance covers identical matters already regulated by the state," Hensen stated in his letter.

In a 12-page supplement enclosed with the letter, Hensen set forth arguments in support of his position "that once it is established that the state has adopted a general scheme of regulation of a particular activity or conduct, the local government is precluded from adopting any regulation pertaining to the same activity or conduct."

Hensen said the preclusion also prevents cities from adopting supplementary regulations.

In his letter, Hensen told the council that if it decides to prosecute a dealer for not displaying signs indicating the price of gasoline, he would "accept service on behalf of his clients."

Last November the City Council, by a 3-2 vote, passed an ordinance which requires all service stations in the city to post the price of gasoline on signs that can be seen from the street.

During public hearings on the ordinance, many service station dealers made it known they would file suit against the city if the ordinance was adopted.

After the ordinance was passed, Al Cardona, president of the Peninsula Chapter of the Northern California Service Stations Association representing 13 San Bruno stations, held discussions with various city officials in an effort to have the ordinance rescinded.

All Cardona's efforts failed, and the chapter association retained Hensen.

At one point, Councilman Gary Mondfrans, in an attempt to thwart the threatened suit, told Cardona he would ask the city attorney and City Council to consider a compromise ordinance that would require all retail and commercial businesses to post prices of some products on signs outside their establishments.

Mondfrans' proposal received no support from the council.

Hensen told the councilmen, "The fact that we have not at this time raised other arguments showing the invalidity of the gas price posting ordinance" should not be construed to mean that we do not believe that the city ordinance could be found to be invalid and unenforceable for other reasons."

If the city prosecutes a dealer, it will be the first time the validity of a gasoline price-posting ordinance is tested in a California court, according to Hensen. The cities of Pacifica, San Mateo, San Francisco and Palo Alto have mandatory gasoline price-posting ordinances.

Hams Aid Victims

each willing to operate the local communications terminal.

Behind the "hams" came a steady stream of Guatemalans, many of them highly emotional and sick with concern. Among the first to visit the station was Consul General Morales, and his cousin, Francisco "Frank" Morales, a concerned San Leandro resident acting as a runner for diplomatic messages.

Johnson's station at last got the go-ahead for two-way voice traffic with Bela. After passing along information of outgoing medical and rescue supplies donated by the Bay Area Latin community, the consul general asked for a condition report of the area surrounding the city.

He stood in silence and disbelief as the degree of devastation began to sink in.

"My god, it's wiped out," Francisco muttered.

The following day, as devastation continued in aftershocks, Bela broadcast a frightening message.

"I've got to leave the air; the house is shaking badly. I'm going outside until it stops," she said.

The network of stunned amateurs listened for a clue for a full five minutes. For some it seemed like five hours.

"This is TG9HS," said the voice, as the hams breathed a collective sigh of relief. "It was a bad one. I've still got power, but my house is in bad shape."

Several hours later came the shocker. One of the city's major hospitals and a center for treating the wounded had collapsed. Twenty-eight nurses were killed, as were scores of patients.

Francisco Morales arrived at Johnson's station on Thursday afternoon. The death toll stood at 5,000. Both major wire services, reporting from Mexico City, had it at 500.

Listening to the roll call of cities destroyed emanating from TG9HS, a friend and fellow countryman of Francisco's stood with bowed head, a tear slid silently down his cheek.

Johnson's telephone began to ring off the hook. Many calls were received from people anxious to contact their relatives. Johnson patiently took down each message, and assured the callers he would try to get them through.

"If we could only find a Guatemalan teletype link," Johnson said in frustration. "We could send all of these messages down there in five minutes with a radioteletype link."

The roll of messages grew. So did the frustrations of the hams trying to relay voice messages to the pitifully few Guatemalan stations operational.

The relief operation continued over the weekend. Drives and canvasses for medical supplies were hastily organized.

Ricardo Robles, the son of the fire chief of Guatemala City, got the ear of officials of the Burlingame Fire Department, and made a collection of rescue equipment which was driven to a San Francisco collection point.

Robles, a daily visitor to Johnson's was a regular figure on the radio; his posture hunched over the console in anticipation, eyes wide at what he was hearing from Bela, a tremor in his voice from what he knew to be the chaos in his homeland.

Talking to a relief operator on the telephone, Roble set the pace of funneling the supplies into Guatemala.

"Where is that goddamn airplane?" he shrieked. "Goddammit, I collected a whole truck load of fire equipment to help them, I'll get it there if I have to drive it myself."

His harsh words were more out of frustration than anger at the volunteers at the collection center. He banged the receiver down and stood silently, thinking.

President Kjell Laugerud Monday night broadcast a message to the people of the State of Oregon to thank them for their help.

"On the state seal of the State of Oregon, there is a motto which reads, 'The Union'," Laugerud said. "Because of your assistance, you have truly forged a union between the people of your state and the people of Guatemala."

"The people of my country will never forget the help of the people of the State of Oregon," Laugerud declared. "Never."

And as radio communications faded Monday evening, a bone-weary Bela, constantly on the air since last Wednesday, left a message for all as her voice trailed off in the ether:

"My dear friends, I love you all so very much," she said to the volunteers of the network. "When this is over, we must work together to form a new..."

Judge reviews 4-H dessert

4-H Favorite Foods

Every year the San Mateo County 4-H community spreads a gigantic array of breads, desserts, salads and entrees at its annual Favorite Foods contest at Terra Nova High School, Pacifica. This year the favorites of more than 200 youngsters were sampled and critiqued by a dozen judges, most of whom are related to the food industry or are past or present home economics teachers.

AT LAST, JUDGING'S OVER

Counties to Unify?

Former San Francisco Supervisor Marvin E. Lewis, now a resident of Hillsborough, wants to heal a wound dating back 120 years.

Lewis, a prominent attorney, is seeking the reunification of San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Speaking at the San Mateo Rotary Club's luncheon meeting at the Ben Franklin Hotel Feb. 12, Lewis said his proposal that San Francisco drop its county government in favor of this county will be introduced to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors in resolution form this week.

"The needs of the people don't stop at artificial boundary lines," Lewis told the Rotarians. "It would be better for the people to have fewer politicians and less fragmentation of government."

Lewis said county government today is "outmoded, nothing more than the state government doing business for the people living in a specific geographical area."

San Mateo County originally was a part of San Francisco, but broke away through the Consolidation Act of 1856 in the wake of Vigilance Committee rule in San Francisco. Originally, San Francisco's county line was San Francisco Creek, the present southern limit of San Mateo County.

"The City and County of San Francisco is a freak," Lewis declared. "There are only two other cities in the country like that — Denver and Honolulu — and there is nothing wrong with Chicago being the largest city in Cook County."

Lewis ticked off four previous attempts to reunite the two counties, all of which failed. During the last attempt, in 1927, however, enabling legislation was passed in Sacramento which is still in effect, but was never used because of a complicated system of elections it mandated.

Lewis said San Mateo County could do nothing but benefit from San Francisco eliminating its county government, pointing out savings in welfare costs, county employee salaries and increased efficiency through use of sophisticated systems geared for a larger census.

Lewis said the recent growth of regional government is indicative of the need for joint planning and of the desirability of reunification.

Continuing problems such as airport expansion and the increasingly industrialized area of this county are needs which could best be handled through a single county government, Lewis said.

Lewis denied that he is advocating such a reunification, but said he is advocating the Boards of Supervisors in the two counties should form a committee comprised of representatives of business and labor to study the concept "from every conceivable angle."

Lewis recalled he had appeared before the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors as a supporter at the time of the formation of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART), and blamed the failure of this county to remain in BART on "selfish interests," particularly that of developer David D. Bohannon, developer of Hillsdale Shopping Center.

Dark Ages End For Little Dog

The little black mongrel who has lived under a Brisbane home for the last 15 years is in the kind hands of the Peninsula Humane Society.

Walter Steiss, a trust officer for Hibernia Bank, has been placing a pie pan of dog food under the house since the death of her mistress a month ago.

The little and aging dog with a Pomeranian head and a Cocker body was fed by its mistress under the house until the elderly lady became ill. Then the job was taken over by the conservator of the estate.

No one was able to get close to the dog until officials of the Peninsula Humane Society placed a special type of trap, designed by a Stanford doctor, under the house and baited it with food.

Last week, officers from the Humane Society took the little mongrel out from under the house — for the first time in 15 years.

The dog, whose name, if she ever had one, died with her mistress, was taken to the Coyote Point animal shelter.

She was described as "skittish and frightened."

Because she had been alone for so many years, the dog was placed alone in a special recovery ward. Humane Society officials said they fear she might be frightened — even by other dogs.

She will remain at the shelter until the estate is settled. Then it will be up to the heirs of the estate to take over her care.

Neither bank officials nor humane officers gave out the address of the little dog's former dark abode, because it is entirely empty now. And while there are still kind people in the world, there are vandals as well.

$50,000 Bail Set in Arrest

Emmett Thrower, 50, of San Jose, was held on $50,000 bail today after being arrested shortly before midnight Sunday by the California Highway Patrol.

Thrower, charged with driving while under the influence, also was charged with possession of narcotics. The CHP said a quantity of a white crystalline substance was found in the vehicle.

According to their report, Thrower was first stopped while northbound on Route 101 near Third Avenue, San Mateo, by a sheriff's deputy at about 10 p.m. The CHP then arrived and arrested him.

He gave his occupation as a reporter for the Peninsula Bulletin, East Palo Alto.
